Tactics And Enacted Bill In Night

Washington, June 1—(AP)—Congress sped to conclusion of its greatest peacetime task today—that of balancing off a gaping Treasury deficit to preserve the American dollar from foreign attacks pictured by President Hoover.

The billion dollar revenue bill, archstone of the bridge over the Treasury gap, was returned to the House again and immediately directed to a conference between the two branches to get final agreement on the legislation.

The House acted unanimously, not instructing its conferees to stand by this far that provision of the original House bill. This will expedite action by the conference.

Speaker Garner named Representatives Collier of Mississippi; Crisp of Georgia; Rainey of Illinois; Democrats; and Hawley of Oregon and Treadway of Massachusetts, Republicans as conferees. The Senate conferees, appointed

In New Tax Levies

BULLETIN
Washington, June 1—(AP)—Taxpayers will start feeling many of the new and increased taxes within 15 days after President Hoover signs the bill, making it a law.

All the excise levies in the bill returned to the House today and the import taxes on coal, oil, lumber and copper go into effect then and remain in force until July 1, 1934.

The first class postal rate increase goes into effect 30 days after it is signed, while the second class takes effect July 1. These are also temporary.

The admissions, communications, produce futures, check levies and the stamp taxes on stocks and bonds go into effect also in 15 days, as does the levy on gasoline and electricity.

Washington, June 1—(AP)—Besides the high income tax rate imposed in the revenue bill as passed by the Senate, following are some of the new levies which may be expected to fall directly on the average individual:

Higher postage, beginning at three cents per letter.
Excise taxes: Five per cent on radios, phonographs, mechanical refrigerators. Ten per cent on cosmetics, jewelry, sporting goods, cameras, fire arms and furs. Three per cent on automobiles, two per cent on accessories. Four cents a gallon on lubricating oil, one cent on gasoline. Two per cent on candy, chewing gum and soft drinks.

Miscellaneous: Ten per cent on all admission tickets costing more than 50 cents. Ten to 20 cents on telephone messages over 50 cents, five per cent on telegrams, ten cents on cablegrams. Two cents on all bank checks. Ten per cent on safety deposit box charges.

Other charges, such as the three per cent on gross receipts of electric utilities, and tariffs on imported oil, coal, copper and lumber, may be passed on indirectly.

The income tax rates are four per cent on the first $4,000; eight per cent above that with a graduated surtax beginning at one per cent above $6,000. Exemptions are $2,500 for married persons, $1,000 for single, in contrast to the present $3,500 and $1,500. The married person exemption is reduced to $2,000 for those making more than $5,000.

The net effect is that a married person with no dependents will pay $20 on the first $3,000; $60 on $4,000 and $100 on $5,000. The exemption for dependents stands as at present at $400 each.

Iowa Salesman Is Fined By Simonson

Paul Casper, alias Paul Frick, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, salesman, was assessed a fine of $100 and costs by Judge Magistrate A. E. Simonson in police court this morning on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while in an intoxicated condition. Casper was arrested shortly after 9 o'clock last evening, following an automobile crash at the intersection of Peoria avenue and Third street.

Miss Edna Cassens of Sterling had stopped for the traffic light, when Casper's car crashed into her machine causing some damage. Miss Cassens escaped injury, however, but her car was taken to a local garage for repairs. Officer Pomeroy, who was summoned to the scene, placed Casper under arrest.

Commissioner Brooks then presented his ordinance immediately after Commissioner Campbell presented his ordinance. The council then sat through a long argument and the reading of court decisions pertaining to illegal taxes by Commissioner Brooks.

PEORIA AVENUE
NOW CLOSED TO
HEAVY TRAFFICThe Objections Of Mayor
And Brooks Over-
Ridden Twice

Freight trucks and passenger buses no longer are permitted to use Peoria avenue from its intersection with the Lincoln Highway on West Everett street south to Seventh street due to the passage of an ordinance presented by Commissioner John H. Loftus at last evening's meeting of the city council. The restricted zone from Second to Seventh street was extended to include the new bridge and the north side paving.

Commissioner Loftus presented his ordinance immediately after Commissioner Brooks had presented a motion seeking to rescind the action of the council of Oct. 13, last year when Peoria avenue was closed to heavy traffic from Second to Seventh streets. Commissioner Loftus pointed out the danger in the using of Peoria avenue with three schools and two playgrounds along that thoroughfare. The mayor ruled that the Loftus ordinance would be the first to be voted upon and he and Commissioner Brooks opposed the passage of the measure.

Commissioners Campbell, Nichols and Loftus voting in the affirmative. Commissioner Brooks then withdrew his motion and the argument was closed. At least for the time being. The report of City Engineer T. W. Clayton that Galena avenue pavement was so constructed as to be able to support twice the weight of traffic as the Peoria avenue paving south of Second street was read during the discussion.

Plans for the flower show to be held in the basement of the Elks' club this week end are progressing rapidly. The flowers are to be received on Friday morning, the judging will be done on Friday afternoon, and the show will be open to the public on Friday evening, as well as all day Saturday and on Sunday afternoon.

The committee wishes to emphasize the fact that it is not necessary that an entry blank be signed by persons wishing to exhibit, but that their entries will be welcomed at the Elks' club on Friday morning. It is also stated that persons who may have signed an entry blank for one kind of flower may also bring other kinds without signing an additional entry blank.

Those having named varieties of flowers are urged to exhibit them under their name, as a great many people who attend the show will do so in order to obtain the names of flowers for their own gardens.

No Entry Fees Charged
There is no entry fee for exhibits, and there are 500 attractive containers of various sizes, available for the use of exhibitors. It has been found that a number of kinds of flowers were omitted from the entry blanks, and arrangements have been made to award prizes in a large number of additional classifications. All kinds of flowers and flowering shrubs will be welcome, especially new or unusual kinds.

The prizes will include garden tools, bulbs, rose bushes, fertilizer, urns, vases, bird baths, books, magazines, etc. A partial list of the donors of prizes is as follows:

DEPRESSION IN COURT.
Girard, Kas., June 1—(AP)—Financial stringency has struck the Kangaroo court.

In prosperous times prisoners sent to the Crawford county jail were fined $5 by other inmates for "breaking jail." The fine now is only $3.

ROBBERS KILLS PAL.
Chicago, June 1—(AP)—A Negro robber, mortally wounded, killed his companion also a Negro, last night during an attempt to rob Earl Riley, 43, owner of a delicatessen store.

Riley, also a Negro, fired a shot at one of the robbers. The bullet struck him in the chin. The shock of the bullet caused the gunman to pull the trigger of his own weapon as he fell. The charge from his pistol pierced the back of his companion. Both were dead when the police arrived.

AGED FARMER QUILTS.
Chicago, June 1—(AP)—James D. Wilke, 77-year-old pioneer Bloom township farmer, offers his 113-acre farm to any charitable institution that will make a small down payment and pay an annuity of $6 an acre to him and his 66-year-old wife as long as they live.

Wilke said yesterday that three years ago the farm, with its nine-room brick house, was valued at $40,000 but high taxes and low prices of agricultural products no longer make it profitable.

A charitable institution or a church, he suggested, might be able to run the farm at a profit because they would be tax exempt. There are no incumbrances on the property other than an $804 tax bill payable this year.

The farm, Wilke said, has been in his family since 1853, and until recent years, has always paid.

Two Rockford Boys
Held By Officials

Earl Van Core, aged 17, and Robert Rinehart, 20, both of Rockford, were held at the police station today awaiting word from the Rockford police department. The two youths were taken in custody by Chief Van Bibber and Officer Bohmstedt last evening at the Illinois Central depot.

They were reported to have applied for money at a home in that neighborhood. At the police station when questioned, both stated that they formerly lived in Rockford and were enroute home from a trip to Montana. Chief Van Bibber communicated with the Rockford police and was informed both men had police records. Both admitted having served terms at the St. Charles State School for Boys, having been sentenced from Rockford.

Asks Receivership For Warner Bros.
Wilmington, Del., June 1—(AP)—A suit for a receivership was filed against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. in the U. S. District Court here today by Harry Koplar of University, near St. Louis, Mo.

The suit also asked for an accounting from Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner and Jack L. Warner and other officers and directors of the corporation.

The bill of complaint asked that the individual defendants be ordered to account to the corporation for their official conduct in the management and disposition of the funds, property and business committed to their charge.

EIGHT PEORIANS
CONVICTED TODAY
OF KIDNAP PLOTPrison Terms Ranging
To 25 Years Jury's
Recommendation

Peoria, Ill., June 1—(AP)—Eight of the 11 defendants were convicted by a jury in Circuit court today of the kidnaping of Dr. James W. Parker for $50,000 ransom last March. Four men, for whom the state asked the death penalty, were recommended for penitentiary sentences of 25 years.

The jury received the case at 9 P. M. last night and deliberated until 8 A. M. this morning. It recommended terms of 25 years for James W. Betson, a former candidate for mayor; his nephew, Cecil Minninger; Claude Evans, an ex-convict, and Arlo Stoops, 15 years imprisonment for Stoops' brother Raymond; Seven years for Dwight Bartlett, and five years each for Attorney Joseph H. Pursifull and Homer Massey.

Three Acquitted.
Mrs. Jessie Stoops, wife of Raymond Stoops, son of Dean, 17, and Edward Woodford, a hired hand on their Fulton county farm near Peoria, were acquitted.

The trial lasted exactly three weeks. It resulted in swift and complete punishment by Peoria county for the abduction of the wealthy surgeon from his home opposite the Bradley College campus here on the night of March 14.

Officers of Chicago's famous "Secret Six" brought into the case by their wide experience in kidnaping affairs, caused the arrest of Betson and Pursifull, former allies as minor politicians, as they tried to strike a financial deal with the Parker family. The next night, April 1, the surgeon was released and returned unharmed to his home without payment of the money demanded.

Ten days later the other arrests were made and Dr. Parker identified the Stoops farm home 25 miles from here as his 18-day prison. The 11 defendants and Mrs. Minninger were indicted. All signed confessions and were held in $50,000 bonds. The trial began May 9. Mrs. Minninger was subsequently discharged for lack of evidence.

Sentence Next Monday
The recommendations fixed by the jury, being the legal assessment of penalty for kidnaping in Illinois, will be imposed by Judge Henry J. Ingram probably next Monday. At that time he will hear motions for new trials, he said.

Pursifull, once a candidate for State's Attorney here, has served notice of appeal. The other seven were expected to follow his lead.

The jurors argued the case until 11:30 P. M., before balloting. It was learned at first they stood ten to two for convicting Betson. Later nine to three in favor of life imprisonment. They finally decided on 25 years and followed the same procedure on Minninger.

Other decisions followed rapidly until Pursifull was reached. There was a deadlock on the question of giving him more than five years imprisonment, several holding out stubbornly for acquittal.

The jury finished its work at 4:30 A. M. and went to sleep. Mrs. Stoops, although acquitted, almost collapsed when the verdicts were read. Her son helped her from the courtroom after a short rest. Her husband wept a little. Massey merely chewed his gum a little harder. Betson appeared unmoved.

Harry Kennedy was reported to be somewhat improved, he having suffered minor bruises, but was stricken with pneumonia following the crash.

Seventh Alleged
Slayer On Trial

Fairfield, Ill., June 1—(AP)—With only two jurors tentatively selected yesterday at the opening of the trial here of Joe Kuca of West Frankfort, the last of the seven defendants in the Moats murder case, a fresh venire of 45 was called today with indications the jury may not be completed before late today or tomorrow.

Kuca is charged with participating in the slaying and robbery of Angus Moats, wealthy Mt. Erie farmer. Six other men have already been tried and convicted. One of these men, Elmer Gray of West Frankfort, was sentenced to be executed in the electric chair at the Southern Illinois penitentiary on June 18.

The other five men received sentences ranging from 14 years to life. They are: Merritt Moore; Richard Moore; Elmer Auten; George Carr; and Harry Terry.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop were enroute to their home in Sterling, returning from a week end outing in Wisconsin. Mrs. Bishop sustained a slight cut on the head and minor bruises. She was taken to her home in Sterling and after the car was righted Mr. Bishop, who escaped injury, drove the machine to Sterling.

McWILLIAMS'
SECOND TRIAL
ENDED TODAYJudge Fisher Decrees
Boy Of 17 Must Die
In Chair June 24

BULLETIN

Rockford, Ill., June 1—(AP)—Saved from the electric chair once by the Illinois Supreme Court, 17-year-old Russell McWilliams was again given a death sentence by Judge Arthur E. Fisher today after a second trial.

The Supreme Court had awarded the young killer a new trial after Clarence Darrow had pleaded his cause and eminent social workers, Jane Addams and the late Julia Lathrop among them, had interceded because of his youth.

McWilliams killed a street car conductor in a robbery. He said he had drunk liquor to gain the nerve for the holdup.

The high court decided the trial judge erred in refusing to permit introduction of mitigating evidence concerning the youth and circumstances of the defendant's life.

McWilliams pleaded guilty before Judge Fisher at the second trial and evidence in mitigation was presented.

At the close of the hearing today Judge Fisher pronounced once more the death penalty and fixed the date of execution for June 24 in the state prison at Joliet.

EVIDENCE ALL IN

Rockford, Ill., June 1—(AP)—A witness called in behalf of Russell McWilliams, 17-year-old boy fighting a sentence of electrocution, testified in the new trial today that in his opinion McWilliams was not drunk when he killed a street car conductor in a holdup last year.

The youth testified yesterday that he was intoxicated at the time and consequently not responsible for his act.

Charles Lerch, a passenger on the car, said he noticed an odor of liquor on McWilliams' breath but that it seemed to have been acquired the day before. On cross examination the state forced him to admit that the youth did not appear intoxicated during the robbery.

One state rebuttal witness, Tom Scone, a court stenographer, cleared the way for closing arguments. Scone testified to a transcript of a statement made by McWilliams when he was caught the day after the robbery, and that the youth was not drunk.

Judge Arthur E. Fisher indicated he would not limit the time for arguments.

May End This Eve
State's Attorney William D. Knight began closing arguments. He said he would not take long. There was a prospect of the case reaching Judge Fisher late today, and of an immediate ruling.

The new trial, granted by the high tribunal, was opened yesterday and for two hours the youth remained on the stand as he told the story of his life. He drank liquor, he said, "to get enough nerve to rob people," and stories of shootings and violence were his favorite reading fare.

Defense counsel William Holly of Chicago, in an effort to show that McWilliams was a "good" and dutiful son until "gin parties" and a deep interest in guns brought downfall, called his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McWilliams, to the stand.

Both testified he was regularly employed in an industrial plant, turned his entire pay check over to them and received $3 a week for "spending money." B. E. Prael and S. O. Cernmesser, who knew the youth as a boy living with his parents near Centerville, Ia., said he had never been in trouble then.

McWilliams had been sentenced to die in the electric chair last December but the legal arguments of Clarence Darrow before the Supreme Court helped stop the execution and win him a new trial. Efforts of Jane Addams, the late Julia Lathrop and other welfare workers to have the sentence commuted to life imprisonment because of his youth failed to move the Governor, however.

TAX BILL NOW IN CONFERENCE; PASSAGE SURE

President's call for a manufacturer's sales tax, defeating this by the decisive margin of 53 to 27 just before passing the bill by the even wider margin of 72 to 11.

It beat down in rapid order a whole succession of attempts to strike out tariffs and revise previous decisions.

The bill was dispatched to the House for a conference to adjust many differences, none of which were expected to prove dangerous. The prospect was it would be ready for the President's signature by the middle of next week.

Senators Weary

After the terrific grind, the Senate was weary and short-tempered at the final vote. It heard a last rush of debate in which two Democrats, Glass of Virginia and Tydings of Maryland, argued the bill would fail to balance the budget. To this Reed of Pennsylvania administration spokesman, sharply answered that with the passage of the $250,000,000 economy bill, the aim would be certainly accomplished.

As it now stands, the tax bill is the largest revenue-raiser ever adopted by this government in peace time. Its income tax rates are equal to the immediate post-war levies, beginning at four percent on the first $4,000 and swiftly mounting.

Taps Every Pulse

It carries a tremendous sweep of excise taxes which will probably tap the pocketbook of every man; on petroleum, coal, copper and lumber.

It imposes higher postage rates, beginning with three cents for each letter. It places a range of new taxes on financial transactions of all kinds, from stock market deals to personal bank checks.

So determined was the Senate to make the enactment of this bill its answer to all doubts and fears of the nation's stability, that Vice President Curtis even named the men who will confer with members of the House on adjusting the bill. Senators Smoot, Watson and Reed, Republicans, Harrison and King, Democrats, were given this task.

Earlier Curtis had adopted "railroading" tactics to rush the finish, cutting into debate to put the vote on proposed amendments slamming down the gavel and announcing them defeated before the members could get their breath. It fitted in completely with the mood of the chamber.

Crowded galleries hung on to last, many members of the House staying to see the task done. President Hoover, who had put in as long a day as any, stayed up until midnight but then, certain that it was all over, retired for the night.

Colorado River On Wild Rampage

Bythe, Calif., June 1—(AP)—Swollen to the highest stage since 1921, the Colorado river was on a rampage today.

At least three persons, all Negroes, have been drowned, seven other Negroes were missing and more than 20,000 acres of rich farm land threatened with inundation as the flood waters poured through a break in a levee six miles northeast of here.

Every available man has been sent from Bythe to the scene of the levee break. More than 200 worked frantically today to patch the break and save the farm lands on which approximately 2,500 persons live.

Mayor, Brooks Lose

When the roll was called on Brooks' amendment to the original appropriation ordinance filed by Commissioner Campbell, Mayor Dixon and Commissioner Brooks voted for its passage the other three commissioners opposing the action. On the vote on the Campbell appropriation ordinance Mayor Dixon and Commissioner Brooks voted in the negative the three commissioners casting affirmative votes which were sufficient for passage. Following the roll call Commissioner Brooks charged that certain members of the council had apparently formed an alliance to stand together through right or wrong as he continued to bitterly oppose the appropriation ordinance. Commissioner Loftus replied that the ordinance came under Commissioner Campbell's department and that Commissioner Brooks previously had agreed to all of its contents which charge Brooks denied. In defense of his ordinance, Commissioner Campbell told the council that it was not a tax levy, but an appropriation ordinance and that the amounts set forth could be reduced in the various departments if necessary.

In response to an inquiry from Commissioner H. S. Nichols as to the legality of the appropriation for contingent fund purposes City Attorney Martin J. Gannon told the council that in his opinion the appropriation was legal as was the public benefit appropriation.

The mayor called attention to the requests made to him asking that the steel poles supporting the new street signs be painted. Commissioner Loftus suggested that the Goodfellow's furnish laborers to do this and other improvement work for the city during the summer and Commissioner Nichols was assigned the duty of investigating the possibilities of such action.

The report of Auditor George Erwin covering the canvass of the accounts of the City Clerk the City Treasurer, Park Board, Library Board, City Attorney, Chief of Police, and Chief of Fire Department was read and ordered filed. The application of the Scott store at 215 First street for a soft drink license was granted.

Series Of Revival Meetings Is Begun At Assembly Park
Evangelist O. G. Ragan, director of the Rock River Valley of the World Wide Christian Couriers of which Paul Rader is founder and president delivered a powerful and interesting message last evening in the Rader tabernacle in Gosepi Assembly park. Mr. Ragan opened a series of ten nights revival meetings with an unusual message characterized or illustrated by stories of his life in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky. Mr. Ragan is an evangelist of considerable reputation, formerly associated with "Billy" Sunday, I. R. Honeywell, Bromley, Bosworth and others of prominence.

The "good old days" heard so much about in Dixon can and will be revived again if the citizens of this community will attend these meetings and join in the slogan, "happy days are here again."

A 24-passenger gasoline launch will cruise up and down the river this summer departing from the dock near the bathing beach. There is no charge of admission to the grounds and the public is cordially invited. The Park hotel is open to the public and special attention is given to family groups, parties, picnics, etc.

RAGMAN
DOWN the lily the ragman calls.
"Any rags? Any rags, iron, or rubber?"
Lilac trees can over the walls,
Shaking dew on his dusty hat.

Sun-flecks dapple his overalls, ling along.
To the tune of his walking, walk—"Any rags? Any rags, iron 'r rubber?"

The cardinal bends a crimson head
To this other being whose work is song.
Around the corner a watchful cat
Advances one ear and a curious eye.

Dogs rush after the noisy tread cry
Of heels, and the musical haunting
And probably I shall run out some day.

Heedless of what ever gossip will say,
To dance with my shadow along the wall,
and sing at my loudest the ragman's call.

Any rags? Any rags, iron 'r rubber?"
—Kathryn Entres Welch, in "The Gypsy."

Donald Stauffer Married at His Home in Dixon On Sunday

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stauffer, 313 E. Fellows street at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 29th, Rev. James Barnett, pastor of the First Christian church of Dixon, using the simple ceremony, united in marriage, Donald D. Stauffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stauffer and Miss Sue Viola Vickroy. Both young people are from Moline, Ill.

Mrs. Donald Stauffer is the daughter of Mrs. Letitia Vickroy of Knoxville, Ia., having spent most of her life in that city, but for the past few years has made her home in Moline, Ill. She is a very charming young woman and is enjoyed a host of friends in Knoxville and Moline.

Donald is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stauffer, 313 E. Fellows street. He graduated from the North Dixon high school with the class of 1922. After completing a business course in the Cripps Business College, he was employed for six years in the auditing department of the Ill. Northern Utilities Co. of Dixon. For the past two years he has been manager of the Miller-Jones Shoe store in Moline.

These popular young people have many friends in Dixon and Moline who wish them many happy years of wedded life.

After June 1st, they will reside at 2334, Thirty-first street, Moline.

Evolve Wise Spending Study Program

Washington, June 1 —(Special)

—Women are as eager as men for a return of prosperity. Can they do anything about it? Since 41 per cent of this nation's wealth is in the hands of women and the family purse, are they not in a position to help relieve unemployment, restore confidence, speed up business activity and bring back prosperity? These are some of the questions asked by Mrs. W. E. Miller of Oakland, Nebraska, chairman of the Economic Adjustment committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Believing that women do have a definite responsibility in this direction, the General Federation of Women's Clubs evolved a "Wise Spending" Study Program. The subjects that make up this study program are those with which homemakers are daily concerned: delivery of merchandise, returned merchandise; credit on merchandise; production and selection of desirable merchandise. Retail delivery service has increased 35 to 50 per cent since 1921. Why? Has it done so in accord with sound economics? Is there a tendency toward excessive delivery demands?

Returned merchandise totals four to five billions of dollars in value annually. What does it cost to return merchandise? Who pays for it? Who is to blame for it?

Two-fifths of this country's retail business is done on credit—charge accounts, deferred payment, installment buying, and installment buying totals five billions of dollars annually. To what extent is it wise to do business on credit? To what extent is it wise for the consumer to buy on credit? Do present trade practices as to merchandise delivery, merchandise return and merchandise credit mean needless waste, unnecessary overhead expense, are they the cause, in part, of business failures and unemployment?

One and one-half billion of dollars are spent annually on advertising and 600,000 people are engaged in it. It is therefore important business to know what constitutes constructive advertising?

The "Wise Spending" Study program in its treatment of the above subjects points out the relationship that exists between wise spending and prosperity. As defined by the study program, "Wise Spending is that spending which releases each dollar in accordance with sound economics from the viewpoint of the welfare of the family, the business success and social development of the community, and the general prosperity and economic progress of the nation." It is designed that a three-fold benefit shall accrue from this study program: first, that the club women who undertake the study shall receive an educational benefit of practical out in the creation of right public value; second, that they shall lead opinion and practice as regards the subjects under study; and third, that their attitude toward present trade practices and policies with reference to delivery of merchandise, return of merchandise, purchase on credit, and what constitutes good advertising and desirable merchandise shall somehow be made known to industry and business in the hope and belief that the producer, distributor, and consumer, all three will profit, thereby.

To make possible this third benefit from the study program, a quiz has been compiled on each of the five listed general subjects, which is to be answered by the individual club women making the study, each one of which when answered will find its way to the United States Department of Commerce, if directions are followed, the information contained therein to be analyzed and published by the department and then made accessible to the public. We are told that while the viewpoint of industry and business on trade practices and policies has been publicity ever to an extent has the viewpoint of the consumer on trade practices and policies been compiled and published.

Always alert to the needs of the time, the federated club women in their role as homemakers are endeavoring to make a definite contribution to economic stability through this study program devoted to "Wise Spending."

Zion Household Science Club Elected Officers

The Zion Household Science Club met with Mrs. John Wells on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Raymond Brechon as assistant hostess, with a good attendance of members and several guests from Dixon and vicinity.

The meeting was opened at 2:30 by the president, and all sang "America." Roll call followed and each member responded with a quotation. The Secretary and the treasurer's report was then read and approved.

Mrs. Carl Janzen gave a brief talk on Home Bureau, and this was followed by an open discussion by several members.

Miss Mildred Laursen and Mrs. Roy Lane gave two very delightful vocal solos. Mrs. James Miller closed the program with a reading, after the program the birthday gifts for three members, Mrs. Mary Wolfe, Mrs. Raymond Brechon and Miss Mildred Laursen were distributed.

The following officers were also elected for the coming year:

President — Mrs. Chas. Beard, Vice Pres. — Mrs. Howard Switzer.

Secretary and Treas. — Mrs. James Miller.

The hostess and her able assistants served a most tempting luncheon. Late in the afternoon the member and guests departed for home all voicing a very happy afternoon.

that this spring shower would not be complete without a rain-bow, and that at the end of the rain-bow she would find the pot of gold.

An archway between two of the rooms had been decorated with the seven rainbow colors and the bride elect found that the pot of gold contained many beautiful gifts from the twenty guests who were present.

thinkers, and writers of the present day. You will want to read it. Somewhere in the volume you will surely find a succinct statement of what you yourself believe, which will establish the fact that here is a very good book. A few of the contributors are: Elsie, Bertrand Russell, John Dewey, Milligan, Dreiser, James Truslow Adams, Mencken, Dean Inge.

Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens—Unanimously accepted by the American Library Association as the best biography of 1931. The life story of an American reporter, the friend of presidents, city bosses, youthful radicals, foreign dictators. A story of the social idealism that shook the United States from 1900 to 1917. One of the muckrakers himself, but he didn't find any muck, and never condemned.

1000 Ideas for Entertaining at Home—Together with menus and recipes. Also children's parties, money making affairs, high school affairs, costume parties, etc.

Choice Readings—Cummock

A new edition of this standard book of readings, with instructions for pronunciation, development of vocal energy, emphasis, inflection, expression etc.

Byrd's Dogs—O'Brien

Picture strip book for children telling the story of sledge dogs in "Little America" with Admiral Byrd. For children from 6 to 12.

Wild Animals of America—Morse

Picture strip book with description of the fox, grizzly, bear, weasel, beaver, etc. Easily read by children 6 and 7 years old.

Train a Boat and an Island—Kuh

Mrs. Kuh tells how the Perkins family traveled from Chicago to Bermuda, giving all the details of travel by train and by boat, and what they did in Bermuda. For children from 8 to 14.

Clear Track Ahead—Lent

This book furnishes answers to many questions evoked by children.

The credo of 22 philosophers,

Japan Speaks—Kawakami

Here is a book, popular in treatment, authoritative in fact and absolutely up to date, which answers all the questions that intelligent Americans are asking as to Japan's case against China. Kawakami tells the story of the Manchurian railways, of China's persecution of the Koreans, treaty infractions, and he devotes a vigorous chapter to the famous open door policy. The Shanghai disturbance is related fully and consecutively up to March first. The book was considered so authoritative, that it merited an introduction by Inukai, Prime Minister of Japan, who was assassinated last week.

Japan and America—Henry Taft

H. W. Taft, New York lawyer and member of the famous Taft family, visited Japan with several other outstanding Americans at the invitation of Japan. In part 1 of the book, Mr. Taft tells of this visit, their royal welcome, of men, affairs and customs. With this background, he discusses the relations between the U. S. and Japan, particularly immigration. Then follows an up-to-the-minute discussion of the Manchurian controversy and the Shanghai incident.

DO WE MISJUDGE NEW YORK?

It is beginning to look very much as if the nation at large had done the people of New York a grave injustice.

New York is popularly supposed to be a hard-boiled city. Broadway is supposed to be a street where your best friend will put a knife in your back as soon as he gets a chance. The big town, in short, is looked upon as one of those places where the milk of human kindness has gone a wee mite sour.

But behold! How we have been misjudging the place! Here we have the mayor of New York, the over-worked and harassed Jimmy Walker. Mayor Walker, filling one of the most arduous of jobs, seems to have found the world filled with devoted and thoughtful friends, all eager to do what they might to make his path a little smoother. One friend cuts him in on a stock-trading account. Mayor Walker puts up no money of his own; but he takes out, in the end, $246,000. Could there be a finer testimonial to the value of sincere friendship?

Nor does that incident stand alone. A friend meets him at a banquet in Atlantic City and suggests his participation in an oil stock pool. Mayor Jimmy thinks no more about it; later he finds that his friend put him in it anyway, and made $26,000 for him.

Then there was another friend who made a similar sort of investment for him, netting him $10,000; and there was a conversation with some kindly soul on a train, which also resulted in a $10,000 profit; nor may we overlook the friend who bought a $10,000 letter of credit so that the mayor could take a trip to Europe.

All of this is immensely heartening. Friendship, after all, is the most precious thing on earth. It can mitigate the severities of an otherwise dull and monotonous existence, it can make a life of toil seem pleasant and refreshing, it can sustain the soul in time of need. Mayor Walker, plunked down by fate in the heart of the world's most hard-boiled city, found his way fairly cluttered up with friends. Which of us can refrain from envying him?

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WORLD?

Colonel Hugh L. Cooper, president of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, suggests the calling of a world conference "to find out what's wrong with the world."

"It is difficult," he says, "for me to see how a disarmament conference for the limitation of land and naval forces, sitting by one lakeside; another conference on reparations, sitting somewhere else; and a conference on world banking, another on the gold standard and another on tariff—all at different times and places—can produce a lasting remedy for a very sick world. We all know that these problems are so interdependent that they cannot possibly be solved sensibly."

There is sound sense in the idea that all our problems tie in together, and that one cannot be solved unless the others are considered with it.

But would a world conference really do the job? Try to imagine the thing, and you get a picture of a lot of delegates struggling with a lot of words and getting hopelessly tangled in the mesh of their own ideas. The world does not appraise the conference idea these days quite as highly as once it did.

OLD BILLS AND HOARDERS.

The old-fashioned, large-sized bills which constituted the paper money of the United States until a few years ago have practically disappeared from circulation. Most of us do not see one of those bills from one year's end to another.

It comes as a surprise, therefore, to learn from Representative Cochran of Missouri that no less than $538,000, 000 of this large-sized money is still in circulation.

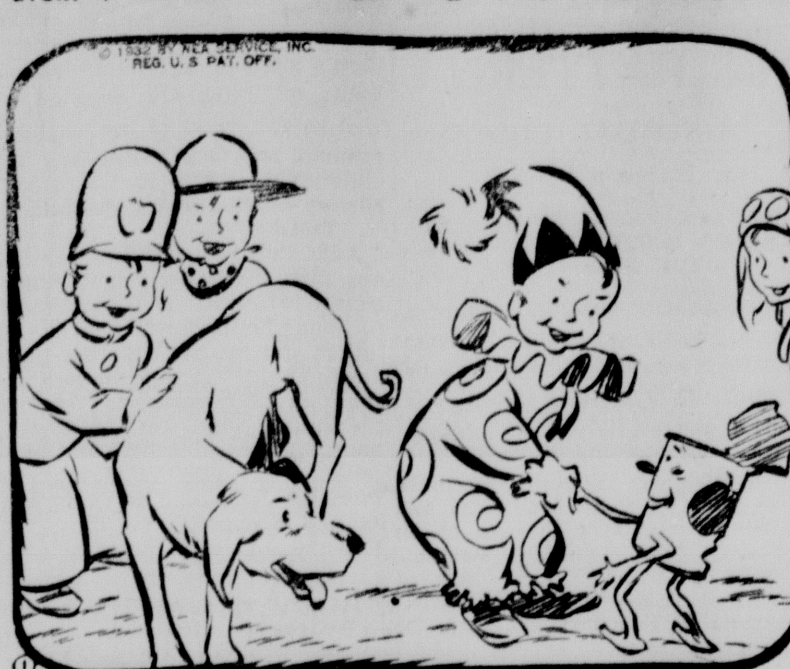

That, perhaps, is hardly the way to put it. It isn't in circulation; it is being hoarded. If it were in circulation it would vanish, for whenever one of those bills lands in a bank it is retired and replaced by a small-sized note.

The campaign against hoarding, evidently, still has quite a way to go, if half a billion in the old-fashioned paper money is still reposing in private caches.

In order to live, I am up every day at 6:30 A. M., and while this will be a jolt to those who think of moving stars as dozing until afternoon in thousand-dollar negligees on leopard-skin rugs, my hours are no better than those of clock-punchers everywhere.—Marie Dressler, movie actress.

Idleness in a prison breeds vice and disorder and means moral, physical and mental breakdown, eventually sending men out into society absolutely unfitted to make their way on even terms with their fellowmen.—Dr. Frederic J. Farnell, Chairman Public Welfare Commission, Rhode Island.

Thanks to the courage and patriotism of our people, we have already taken the first step toward stability.—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, England.

The tin cans that were on parade a very dandy showing made. Of course they looked quite funny to the band of Tinymites.

The way they formed was quite a stunt. One type of cans was up in front. Then came another row of cans. Of all the crazy sights!

King Sardine Can soon shouted, "Hey! You have marched enough now, for one day. And then he loudly cried out, 'Halt! The cans all stood still.'

"Break rank," said Scouty. "Be at ease. Then come and meet us, if you please. We'll all be glad to know you, 'cause you've given us a thrill."

The little tin cans seemed real glad to end the long parade they had had. They rushed up to the Tinies and exclaimed, "Well, who are you?"

"We're Tinymites," we Copy said. "bout us you, no doubt, have read. We travel around to see the sights. You've shown us something new."

One little can seemed full of fun. It said, "If you like what we've done, why don't you do some stunt for us. I think that's fair."

"All right," said Scouty. "We will do the best thing that we know, for you're pretty good at tumbling. Watch us tumble in the air."

For about a half an hour or so the Tinymites put on quite a show. They climbed upon each other and did acrobatic tricks.

And then they heard a tin can cry, "Help! Help!" A dog went running by. The can was tied tight to its tail. My, what an awful fix.

"Hey, Catch the dog. Release the can!" cried Windy. Then the Tinies ran until we Scouty grabbed the dog and held him very tight.

The little can soon was untied. "Oh, thank you, Tinymites," it cried. "A bad yester tied me to that dog, but now I am all right."

Tax Problems
In This StateBy M. H. HUNTER
University of Illinois

33. Administration of Funds.
A tax system may be perfect, the objects for public expenditure may be well chosen, and yet the taxpayer may not get value received for his payments. Adam Smith once said that a revenue system should be so devised that just as little as possible should be taken out of the pockets of the people over what is spent for their satisfaction. In other words economy and efficiency should mark the handling of public funds.

The importance of proper administration has been emphasized by many in Illinois. Some go so far as to lay all our troubles to graft and inefficiency and argue that if we could but eliminate these there would be no objection to our system. Granted the desirability for the elimination of all waste, to do so would not correct other difficulties. It might mean that one would have to collect only 2-3 or 3-4 as much revenue to perform the same functions, but it would not mean that this revenue would be collected from those sources most able to pay it. A tax system might be very unjust and the items of expenditure very unwise even with the most efficient administration of funds.

The adoption of the budget system has done much to promote economy of expenditure. Expenditures are carefully planned at the beginning of the year and these coordinated with the amount of revenue. Such careful planning and strict adherence to it does much to prevent incurring obligations beyond the means to meet them.

The centralization of responsibility also makes for economy and efficiency in handling public funds.

Centralized purchasing is one illustration of affected savings. The organization of more than 100 independent units into nine departments under the Civil and Administrative Code has made possible a much more efficient administration of these functions. Proper administration of public funds is important, whether the amount be small or great. It will not, however, solve the problem for what the money shall be spent or upon whom taxes should be levied.

Business Is Held Back
by Rate Chaos

Regulation of rail rates may be irksome at times, but it serves one outstanding good purpose; it makes the rail rate a dependable factor in business.

Rail rates must be published and strictly adhered to. Every shipper knows what his rate is and what his competitors' rates are and can act accordingly.

This is not the case with less regulated forms of transportation. Some have published rates to which they adhere, but most of them are under no such compulsion.

The results are economic chaos, disruption in business, another unstable factor to complicate competition and retard the return of normal times.

This much can be agreed: if regulation of rail rates is a good thing, equal regulation of rates for all other transportation is a good thing.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

POST AND GATTY

everybody remembers its details: that take-off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, with little Post at the controls and little Gatty navigating—and a skeptical world saying it couldn't be done. But they made Europe, roared over Russia and bleak Siberia, soared across the northern Pacific back to America again and flew triumphantly across the continent to the starting point—in eight days, 15 hours and 50 minutes! Well might Jules Verne, who had suggested it could be done in 80 days—was and laughed at—turn over, groaning, in his grave for lack of imagination. And don't be surprised if Post, who "can't be kept away from this flying business," flies around in half that time. It can be done. And he is the man who is likely to do it.

In a photographic shop in the Catskills, a man solemnly bends over his plates in the dark room. Only last summer his picture was in all the papers. Remember? Read "Air Paths of Glory" tomorrow in The Evening Telegraph.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By Laura Lou Brookman

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, 19 and pretty, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN P. LIPS, newspaper reporter, whom she is in love. Her wealthy parents do not know she is acquainted with Dan. Cherry goes with him to interview a bank robber's sweetheart. She blunders into underworld headquarters and a bullet strikes her arm. Dan takes her to a doctor's office and then home. He is trying to explain what has happened when MR. DIXON appears. Dixon is very angry and brandishes a newspaper containing Cherry's picture and an account of the shooting. He orders Dan out of the house. Days pass in which Cherry has no word from Dan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI

SARAH entered the room breathlessly and shut the door behind her. Her round eyes foretold excitement.

The girl on the chaise longue did not turn. Her peach colored negligee pulled about the slender figure molded it gracefully. On her feet were small gold strapped sandals.

"What is it, Sarah?"

"Sh, darling! Wait till I tell you. It's not right, it isn't, and somebody'll pay for it! Out and out falsifyin' and there's blacker words I could use. It's not right at all."

"What isn't right at all? What's happened?"

Again old Sarah put a warning finger to her lips. "Not so loud," she cautioned, lowering her tone.

Cherry was sitting bold upright now. Impatiently she caught the woman's hands.

"But tell me what's happened!" she begged.

Sarah sat down beside the girl. "Well, then," she said, plunging into her narrative, "I was looking for Martha to ask if the package had come from Wendell's and just as I stepped in the hall I heard Martha talkin' on the library telephone. So I waited until she finished. 'No sir,' Martha says, 'Miss Cherry ain't at home and I don't know when she will be. She's gone to New York.' That's what she says—it's a God's truth! 'She's gone to New York.' So when she put down the telephone I said, 'Martha, who is it you're tellin' such untruths to and ain't you ashamed of yourself?'"

"Martha came back at me and said she guessed it was her duty to do what Mrs. Dixon said and what business of mine was it to be interferin'?" Well, a few words passed between us and do you know what I found out? It was that young newspaper fellow, Phillips—"

"Dan!" Cherry's eyes were flashing. "Then he did call!"

"Yes, and not just this one time neither. After I'd learned that much Martha warmed up and admitted he's been telephoning the house every day. Your mother wouldn't let Martha say anything about it and this morning she said if he called again Martha was to tell him you'd gone to New York."

"On, but Sarah—"

"I know, darlin'. It's a black shame, that's what it is. As nice a young fellow as you'd be findin' anywhere, too. It's your father that's behind it. Still in a temper about what happened the other afternoon."

"But, Sarah, if Dan thinks I've gone to New York he won't call any more! Maybe he'll think I didn't want to see him—maybe he'll blame me!"

"Yes, and not just this one time neither. After I'd learned that much Martha warmed up and admitted he's been telephoning the house every day. Your mother wouldn't let Martha say anything about it and this morning she said if he called again Martha was to tell him you'd gone to New York."

"On, but Sarah—"

"You're so sweet, Cherry," Dan whispered.

blame him?" she asked. "Young fellows don't like to be put off. They were that way in my day and I guess there's not much difference. It's too bad, honey, but we can't help it."

Suddenly Cherry had sprung to her feet.

"I will help it!" she exclaimed. "They can't do this to me—they can't!" She stamped one of the small gold heels. "They've no right to tell lies and keep messages from me. I'm not a child any longer. I'm 19—"

Sarah's protests were useless. They fell on deaf ears. Repeatedly she warned the girl that revolt was futile. Defiance of Walter J. Dixon's orders was heresy. It was sheer madness! The words might as well have been addressed to the wall.

Aroused to action, Cherry was all at once a whirlwind. She flew about the room, pulling garments from hangers—a dress over her head, stockings, slippers. Sarah followed patiently, helping with fasteners.

"But what are you going to do?" she asked again. "Where are you going?"

Cherry pulled the brown felt over her head and gave it a tug. "Now listen," she said, "I'm going to find Dan. I'm going to tell him I haven't gone away and all the other things they told him were untrue. Now here's how you're to help me—"

THE conspiracy was planned quickly. Sarah, her white face an open revelation, made a reconnoitering expedition to the first floor. She returned to report that Mrs. Dixon was busy with callers. Martha was on duty in the front of the house but Cherry could escape unnoticed by descending the rear staircase and going out through the door that led to the garden. Sarah's further part was to busy herself in the sewing room and if anyone inquired for Cherry to say the girl was asleep in her bedroom.

The plan proved flawless. Within five minutes Cherry had reached the highway and was out of sight of the house. She walked the three blocks to the tiny drug store that exclusive Sherwood Heights not only tolerated but found invaluable. There she made two telephone calls. One was to Dan Phillips at the News office. The other was to a taxicab company.

Half an hour later the cab halted at a downtown street intersection. Cherry's face appeared, peering through the glass, and a tall young man clad in a gray suit strode out from the curb. He entered the cab from the curb. He entered the cab from the curb. He entered the cab from the curb.

"Oh, Dan, I was so afraid I'd miss you!" The girl's face was glowing, her eyes star-bright.

Phillips did not smile. "Well," he said evenly, "this is quite a surprise. I couldn't understand over the phone exactly what it was you were saying. Wasn't sure whether you said Fifth or Sixth street—"

"Aren't you glad to see me?" The words burst from Cherry's lips unbidden. "Didn't you want me to come?"

"Why, yes. Of course. Only it's quite a surprise because I understood you'd gone east. New York or some place."

"But that's why I came, Dan! They didn't tell me you'd called. I waited and waited expecting to hear from you and there weren't any letters and you didn't telephone! It was just this afternoon I found out they hadn't been giving me your messages. Sarah—she's the maid—found out they'd told you I'd gone away. Oh, it was wicked of them! And I was so afraid you'd think I didn't want to talk to you! You didn't think that, did you, Dan? You couldn't!"

"Why, I've called a dozen times! Every day—"

"They didn't tell me!"

"Then you mean it wasn't because you didn't want to see me? You weren't just stalling?"

"No, Dan, of course not. How could you think that! Oh, I've been so miserable, so unhappy—"

THE words were lost in a sob. Cherry had turned her face away.

"You mustn't," Phillips said gently. "You mustn't feel badly any longer. Please, Cherry—look at me!"

There was a long pause and then slowly, hesitatingly, the girl turned her head.

"Dan!"

"You darling!"

She was in his arms, the velvet softness of her warm cheek pressed to Dan's. He found her lips, crushed them again and again.

"You're so sweet, Cherry," he whispered, catching her close again. "Then—you do care?"

"But didn't you know? You must have! Oh, Cherry, these last three days have been rotten! I've been worried about you. Kept telephoning but I couldn't get any satisfaction. After a while I began to think maybe you didn't want to talk to me. Couldn't really blame you—but after the things your father said—"

It was at that moment that the taxi driver decided he had endured enough. For several minutes the cab had been held up by traffic signals. Now the red light was glowing.

"Say," he said in a tone not to be ignored, "where do you people want to go?"

"Anywhere," Dan told him. "Drive—er, drive out through Jefferson Park."

The cab moved forward. Cherry's head nestled comfortably against Dan's shoulder. His arm was about her. Neither realized how time was passing.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

In a little book just printed by the Vanguard Press, Harold Matson and Virginia Swain ask some exciting questions. Ten of these are answered by Colonel Joe Williams, of the New York World-Telegram, who names the 10 greatest athletes in as many sports.

Wagner is Joe's nomination for supremacy in baseball, and while there will be a lot of chatter in the back room over that one, this department will cast one vote with the Colonel.

THE CASE FOR RUTH
 There will be those who insist Babe Ruth has proved the greatest hitter of all time. It is pointed out that Ruth not only has been a great outfielder, but a splendid pitcher. He has been the greatest home run hitter the game ever knew, smacking more than 600 homers in his 18 years in the game. Wagner, in his 21 years in the majors, hit only 101 homers.

Ruth has a reputation for never having thrown to the wrong base. Technically, he covered his ground well, but it is impossible to forget the years in which he was shifted out of the sun field and that assignment left to other less colorful workmen.

Wagner had a great deal of color, too, furnishing sensational hitting and sparkling plays during many a crisis. He saved a lot of ball games, but he hardly approaches the Babe either in color or in human interest.

Ruth has shown himself a greater home run hitter, with more color than old John Henry, but Wagner remains the greatest ball player of all time.

COULD RUTH PLAY SHORT?

Shortstop is the toughest spot in baseball. A shortstop has to be fast footed, with ability to go to his right or left. He figures in a great many more plays than an outfielder. He has 10 times as many chances to lose a ball game. Wagner covered this difficult spot for 20 years.

He turned in some of the brightest bits of fielding it ever has been my pleasure to watch, and he was already an old man when I first saw the Dutchman perform against the Cubs back in 1910. What a marvelous fielder he must have been in his prime, despite his appearance of awkwardness, it must be left to those before my time to judge.

Apparently awkward, yet always on top of the ball, dashing with uncanny speed and judgment to either right or left, and with an arm that was always swift and sure, right up to his last year in the game, he was an inspiring one-man spectacle in almost every one of the 2700 or more games he played.

ON THE PATHS
 His speed is reflected also in his base-running record. Wagner stole 720 bases in the majors. Of course, it may be said that Ruth didn't have to steal bases—and he certainly didn't, with an 18-year record of 116 pilfered sacks—but base stealing in Wagner's day held just as important an appeal to the fans as home runs have since Ruth started blasting them about 10 years ago.

I do not believe that Ruth, playing concurrently with Wagner, could have stolen as many bases as the Dutchman did. But I believe that Wagner, playing in Ruth's day, would have made 50 pitchers, and would have made so many more home runs than Ruth that the comparison would be very unflattering to the Babe.

THOSE SMOKING LINERS

If Wagner had been standing up to that plate in his prime during the same period in which Ruth compiled his home run records, you never would have heard of Babe Ruth and the championships that the Yankees won would have gone to Pittsburgh.

Those who have never seen Wagner found that old dead ball "creeping" through the pitcher's box may seem just a day dream. But McGinnity and Miner were on any other pitcher who did it even and ducked when the old Dutchman's ball rang out, will testify to its reality.

LACOSTE'S WIN WAS COSTLY TO AMERICAN TEAM

Wood Was So Tired He Was Of Little Help To Queen Helen

BULLETIN
 Auteuil, France, June 1—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, seeking her fourth French singles title, today defeated Mlle. Collette Payot of Switzerland, 6-2, 7-5, in a quarter-final match of the French tennis championships.

Auteuil, France, June 1—(AP)—Rene Lacoste, who led the "Three Musketeers" of French tennis five years ago when they captured the Davis Cup from America, now stands out again this year as a possible candidate for the French Davis Cup team after three years in retirement.

Lacoste came back this year in the French championships, playing, he said, for the fun of it. But to officials of the French Tennis Federation, who regarded his match with Sidney B. Wood, Jr., yesterday as a vital test, his victory appears to be of considerable significance. Lacoste continued to keep his own counsel after the match but the officials were jubilant, not only because he won but because he was in such excellent condition after the gruelling five-set match.

For the invading Americans, the consequences of Lacoste's triumph were far reaching. Not only did he have to leave the Davis Cup, but Gregory Mangin as the surviving American in the men's singles, but it cost Wood and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody a possible victory in the finals of the mixed doubles. They had to go on soon after the big singles match to face the English pair of Betty Nuthall and Fred Perry in the final match. Wood was so tired that Mrs. Moody had to carry the burden of the match and the Americans were beaten in straight sets.

One other American was left today to contend for singles honors. Helen Jacobs, leading rival of Mrs. Moody, advanced at the expense of Doris Metaxa of France yesterday and today was scheduled to face Mme. Rene Mathieu of France in the quarter finals. Mrs. Moody's next singles rival will be Collette Payot of Switzerland.

D. C. C. Golfers To Sterling Thursday

All made members of the Dixon Country Club have been invited to play golf at the Sterling course at 2 P. M. tomorrow. Those who plan to accept the invitation are urged to notify Secretary Werner Marloth Thursday morning. It is expected that a large delegation from the local club will enjoy the afternoon on the Sterling course.

PADDLE WHEEL PLANE
 Washington—One of the queerest planes ever seen is the "paddle wheel" craft, which is furnished its motive power by a pair of paddle wheels similar to those of an old river boat. The covering of the paddles is similar to birds' wings. When the paddle rises the covering of the wing opens. When it descends the covering closes and its "push" on the air produces a lifting effect.

MORIARTY IS CENSURED FOR BEING LENIENT

Should Have Fired Two Sox Players Before Fight Started

Cleveland, June 1—(AP)—It will cost four members of the Chicago White Sox good money for their affair of feigning with Umpire George Moriarty and the veteran catcher can nurse a severe reprimand as well as his injuries.

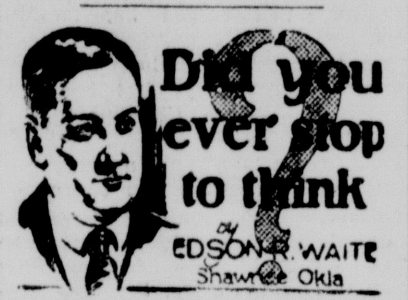

President Will Harridge of the American League, after an investigation of Moriarty's battle with the Sox here Memorial Day in which the Umpire suffered a broken right fist and Pitcher Milton Gaston was knocked out, last night handed out penalties and censured all around.

Manager Lew Fonseca of the Sox was fined $500. Pitcher Gaston was assessed a like sum and suspended ten days, and Catchers Charley Berry and Frank Grube were penalized $250 and $100, respectively. In addition, Coach Johnny Butler was suspended five days without pay for "use of profane language" toward Moriarty.

Moriarty, who broke his hand on Gaston's jaw and proclaimed himself ready to fight the whole Chicago team, was "severely reprimanded for neglect of duty," Harridge announced. The league president held that according to Moriarty's own story, the Umpire should have chased Fonseca and Berry from the game before the trouble started.

Fonseca heard the bad news calmly. "Harridge is the boss and anything he says goes," he said. Moriarty, in seclusion, could not be reached. President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians said he was "100 per cent satisfied."

The fight, an incident Harridge said has not been duplicated in the 21 years he has been in baseball, took place after Cleveland defeated Chicago in both games of a doubleheader. Berry and Moriarty were arguing when Gaston stepped in and took one on the chin, according to Cleveland players. Fonseca, Grube and Berry were then "reported to have rushed Moriarty. Gaston, however, was the only one involved in the fistfight, Harridge found.

Economy has been preached morning, noon and night until everybody is practicing it. The result is that there is very little cheerful talk. If a little of the time used in this Economy talk were used in getting some of the people to spend instead of economize, it would help the country quite a bit on its way to normal times.

LUCAS, WARNEKE STARTED FOR NEW WORK HORSE MARK

Have Pitched Ten And Nine Complete Games Thus Far In Year

By GAYLE TALBOT
 Associated Press Sports Writer

Charles (Red) Lucas, star member of Cincinnati's mound staff, apparently is out to set a modern record for complete games pitched in a season, and with the full approval of Manager Dan Howley.

Thus far, the popular red-head has started and finished ten contests, with the campaign less than a third gone, and has won seven of them. At that pace, he stands an even chance of equaling or bettering the modern mark of 36 complete games set by Grover Cleveland Alexander, back in 1915.

Two hurlers, Wes Ferrell of Cleveland and Bob Grove of the Athletics, turned in 27 full-time jobs last season. Cincinnati's "work horse" should have little difficulty passing that figure. So may Lou Warneke, Chicago Cub rookie, who has started and finished nine games.

That Col. Howley is in sympathy with Lucas' ambition was demonstrated yesterday, when the Reds took a 4 to 1 beating from Pittsburgh and fell back into a tie with the Pirates for third place in the National League.

Pirates On Streak
 Lucas yielded six hits and four runs in the first two innings, but stuck it out to allow only three hits the rest of the way. It made little difference one way or the other, however, as Larry French was pitching almost unbeatable ball for the Pirates. It was Pittsburgh's eleventh victory in fourteen games.

The battle for top position in the National remained a standstill as both Chicago and Boston won. The Cubs defeated St. Louis 3 to 1, behind Lou Warneke's sixth pitching, while Ed Bradley southpawed the Braves to a 7 to 2 triumph over the Giants.

Brooklyn and the Phillies were not scheduled, the lapse causing the Dodgers to drop into fifth place after a day in the first division.

Manush Saves Senators
 Lusty hitting by Heinie Manush in the extra innings enabled the Washington Senators to take a "hot one" from the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 4, in twelve runs and go into a virtual tie with Detroit for second place in the American. Manush slapped a home run in the eleventh and, when that wasn't good enough to win, came right back with a triple in the twelfth that scored Buddy Myer with the clincher.

Myer Freitas, a lefthander from Sacramento, made his debut for the A's and pitched elegant ball until he was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the tenth.

The day's only other contest in the American resulted in a 6 to 5 victory for the embattled Chicago White Sox over Cleveland. Errors by Vosmik and Morgan helped the Sox score five times in the sixth inning.

You should pin your faith in your city, just as your city pins its faith in you.

ALLEGED HEAD OF GERMAN SPIES NEW CHANCELLOR

Frantz von Papen, Once
Persona Non-Grata
In U. S. Chosen

Berlin, June 1—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, stocky, blue-eyed former Austrian army corporal who last night threatened to block the efforts of swanking general of the Kaiser's old Imperial Army in their efforts to form a new German cabinet, was inclined to change his mind today, leaders of his National Socialist party indicated.

Hitler's headquarters announced late last night that the Nazis would not support a cabinet formed by Franz von Papen, former officer of the General Staff of the Imperial Army, who was selected yesterday by President Paul von Hindenburg, former Field Marshal, to succeed Dr. Heinrich Brüning as Chancellor.

Today, however, later counsels in the Nazi camp tended toward a policy of neutrality toward a Von Papen cabinet until such time as new general elections are most convenient, which, it was said, would probably be after harvest time when the farmers would have time to listen to political speeches.

Shun Responsibility
The final decision of the Nazi position is still to be formally made, however, but there was also a tendency on the part of the party leaders to shy away from responsibility for the coming Lausanne conference on war debts and reparations and the odium which might come from a failure of the conference.

As a result of the new Nazi attitude the Von Papen cabinet seemed today to have a chance of governing Germany, at least for a short time. The newspapers then dubbed it a "feudal" cabinet on account of the prospect of its being dominated by members of the old German nobility.

Von Papen was military attaché at the German embassy in Washington during the early part of the World War and was recalled by the Kaiser at the request of the American government for his military and naval activities.

In April, 1916, he was indicted by a Federal grand jury in New York in connection with an alleged conspiracy to blow up the Welland Canal in the province of Ontario, Canada. There were numerous charges that he had participated in directing the activities of German spies in this country.

INDICTMENT QUASHED
New York, June 1—(AP)—A 16-year old indictment, charging Captain Franz von Papen, named to form the new German cabinet, with a plot to blow up the Welland Canal in Canada, has been quashed, it was learned today.

The indictment, returned by a Federal grand jury here on April 17, 1916, was ordered nolle prossed by Federal District Attorney George Z. Medaille on March 8, last.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—The familiar question raise devery four years of "What will Borah do?" has cropped up again by the Idaho Senator's declaration that he will not attend the republican national convention in Chicago.

It is no secret that the gentleman sometimes referred to as the "lone lion of Idaho" has been off the Republican reservation for a long while. His departure dates back to the old farm debenture fight shortly after President Hoover took office.

Borah, who had counseled the President to convene Congress in special session, broke with him then and has since refused to return. The breach seems to have widened even further by his insistence that the Federal government appropriate money directly for relief of the unemployed.

OUT OF CAMPAIGN?

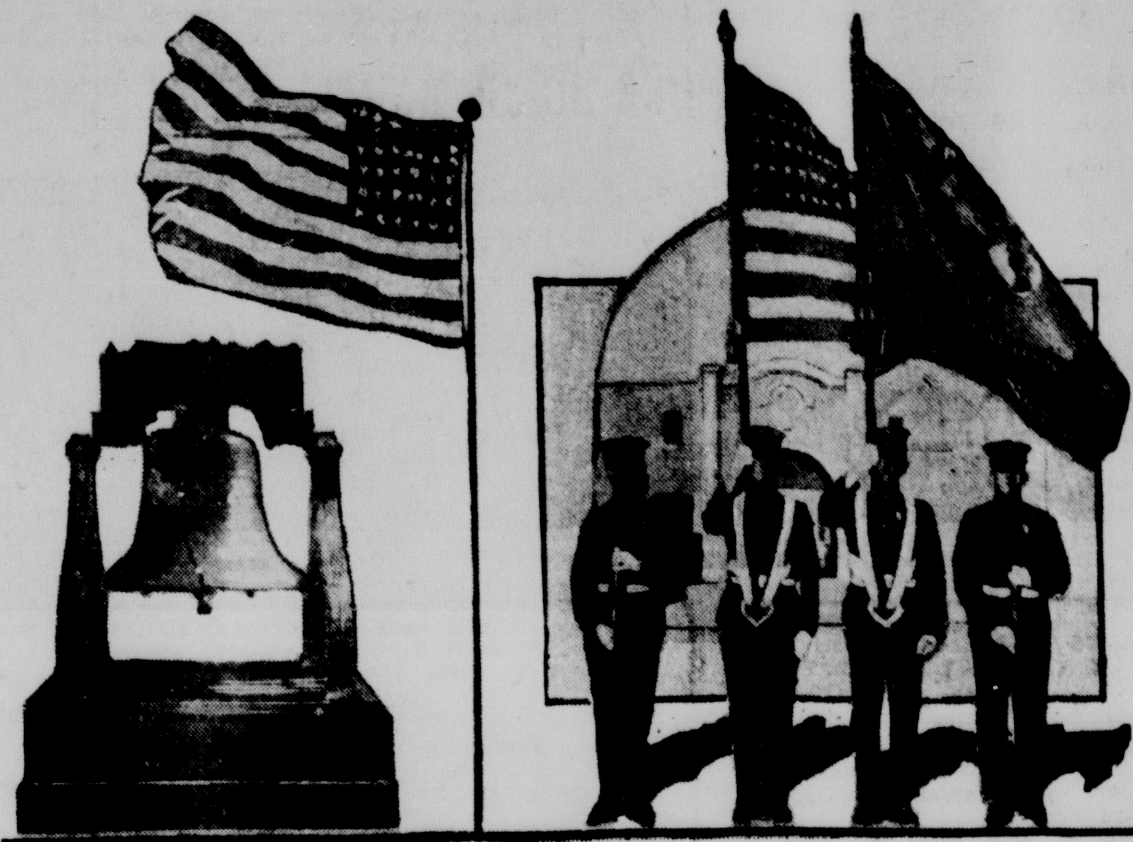

Whether his refusal to be present at Chicago in June means that he will not take an active part in the presidential campaign remains to be seen.

In 1928 the dominant part he played at the convention in shaping politics made him a powerful figure in the Hoover campaign.

It's difficult to conceive of a presidential campaign without Borah playing a leading part one way or the other.

If for no other reason, the question of prohibition would seem to

Sun Never Sets on Old Glory Revered By Nation Since 1777

Less than a year after the Liberty Bell rang out to celebrate the Declaration of Independence, the Stars and Stripes became the official flag of our country on June 14, 1777. The anniversary is now observed as Flag Day. At Right: U. S. Marines on parade with the National Flag and their regimental colors.

We Americans may well be very proud of our flag. It is the most beautiful of all national colors, and has pointed the way to freedom for countless thousands. It stands for patriotism, loyalty and fidelity to the ideals of America.

For 155 years it has been waving in the breeze, the most-loved symbol of our country.

Woodrow Wilson said "This flag which we honor and under which we serve, is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other character than that which we give it from generation to generation."

"The choices are ours. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts that execute those choices, whether in peace or in war. And yet, though silent, it speaks to us—speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us, and of the records they wrote upon it."

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress decided "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

TALK OF THIRD PARTY
Of course, there is the talk about him leading a third party.

When he referred to that idea in the Senate the other day, political writers pounced on it immediately. Letters by the hundreds filled his mail urging that he take the lead.

But thus far there has been little to indicate that he looks with favor on such a proposition.

What his course will be only Borah knows. The only surface indications are to be found in his record. They are that he has never followed a Democrat nor shown any real tendency to desert the G. O. P. standard.

Ogle Co. Farm Bureau Affairs

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Ogle County Farm Bureau will be held at Oregon Tuesday, June 7, according to information received from D. E. Warren, Ogle County Farm Adviser. The business session will open at the Coliseum at 10 o'clock and at the same time a separate session for ladies will convene at the Presbyterian church. Dinner will be served at noon at the Coliseum and the Lutheran church.

The principal address of the afternoon general session will be given by Donald Kirkpatrick, Legal Counsel for the Illinois Agricultural Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation. In this position for several years Mr. Kirkpatrick has been largely responsible for working out the legal details necessary in establishing the many subsidiary corporations of the I. A. A. which have aided Illinois farmers in marketing their farm products to the best advantage and in cooperatively buying farm supplies and insurance services.

NEW AGREEMENT WITH FRANCE TO HELP AMERICANS

Will Permit Increase In Exports From U. S. To That Land

Paris, May 31—(AP)—An important trade agreement which is expected shortly to increase the amount of American goods that may be imported into France was reached today by the United States and French governments.

The agreement grants the United States most-favored-nation treatment on importations which now are curtailed by the French system of quotas.

The agreement was achieved by Ambassador Walter E. Edge who has been working on it for some time. The Ambassador succeeded in convincing representatives of the French government that the present quotas were unfair to American shippers.

The accord took the form of a decree signed by Premier Andre Tardieu.

It provides a method of establishing quotas in the future by more consultation than has been the case in the past with those handling American importations into France. Generally speaking it bases importation limits on the levels of 1931.

American businessmen here declared it would give much satisfaction to United States business interests.

The Celebration And The Campaign

In view of the fact that a number of newspapers have editorially questioned the wisdom of continuing the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration until Thanksgiving Day, it is interesting to this call an important reference to this matter recently made by Honorable Sol Bloom, Associate Director of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

It is assumed by some of these writers that the Presidential Campaign, with its raucous outpourings of propaganda and the "whirling blizzard of manifestos, challenges, defiance and appeals" will blanket the Celebration itself.

Upon this point Congressman Bloom said:

"It must be remembered that the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration is the greatest undertaking of its kind in history. It is impossible for the average person to conceive the far-reaching nature of this activity and the tremendous popular response which has been given to it. Instead of a political campaign blanketing the celebration, I have an idea that the celebration will have nearly blanketed the campaign itself, because of this tremendous response among the people and because of the magnificent scale of the celebration."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, 19 and pretty, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter with whom she is in love. Her wealthy parents do not know she is acquainted with Dan. Cherry goes with him to interview a bank robber's sweetheart. She blunders into underworld headquarters and a bullet strikes her arm. Dan takes her to a doctor's office and then home. He is trying to explain what has happened when MR. DIXON appears. He is very angry and brandishes a newspaper containing Cherry's picture and an account of the shooting. Mr. Dixon orders Dan from the house.

Dan goes in which Cherry has no word from Dan. Then SARAH, Cherry's maid, discovers that he has telephoned and been told the girl is out of town. Cherry steals out of the house, meets Dan and explains. Dan tells Cherry he loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

"I CAN'T believe it's real, Dan. I mean—everything happening the way it has. I'm afraid I'll wake up in another minute and find it's just a dream!"

Phillips said, "And I can't believe you're really here. I can't believe a girl like you would even look at me—"

She silenced him with gentle fingers pressed to his lips. "I've told you not to say 'those things'! I don't want to hear them."

"But it's true, Cherry. Why everything about you—your sweetness and your coming to meet me this afternoon and, well everything—"

"Don't go on," she said. "I love you for it. You know that. But, Cherry, you're worlds above me. I'm Dan Phillips, reporter—the guy your father told never to see her house. It's—well, isn't you see, dear?"

"Don't see what?"

"That if things were different I could say a lot of things I can't now. Your father's a rich man. All your life you've lived in a fine home with his servants. You've worn beautiful clothes and traveled and all your friends have been rich people—"

"But Dan, what difference does that make?"

"If I live to be 90," Phillips went on, deaf to the interruption, "I'll never have a fourth of the money your father has. I couldn't give you any of the things you're accustomed to, Cherry. Do you know how I think of you?"

"How?"

"As a beautiful princess who's as sweet and wonderful as she is beautiful. That's what you are! A princess!"

Cherry shrugged uncomfortably. "I don't want to be a princess," she said. "It sounds lonely. Oh, Dan, let's not talk. Let's just be happy together."

Suddenly their elysium was shattered. Phillips said abruptly:

"Look here, there isn't going to be any trouble about your coming to meet me this afternoon, is there? Do you think your father—"

She assured him everything would be all right. No one knew she had left the house. She would be back before her absence had been noticed.

"What time is it?" Cherry asked. The sun had lowered behind the trees. Phillips turned his wrist so that the girl could see the watch dial.

"After five!" he exclaimed. "Oh, I'll have to get back. Why, I'd no idea it was so late—"

The driver headed the taxicab toward Sherwood Heights. Resolutely Cherry thrust aside misgivings that had begun to force themselves on her consciousness. There would be just time to fling on another dress and appear at dinner.

"Thanksgiving Day is the logical end of the celebration period. It is the day when the nation and the world will have reached the climax of their tribute to the First American. It is the day when all over this land and all over the world, people will bow their heads in devout thankfulness that George Washington lived and that thankfulness will be more sincere and more intelligent because they have learned the greatest history lesson ever given to a people. They will have learned what George Washington stands for in the life of this nation. They will have learned the debt of humanity to this marvelous man."

"The wisdom of continuing the celebration until Thanksgiving Day will only be questioned by those unfamiliar with the spirit and purposes of the celebration itself, and especially those who are not familiar with its real significance. Nothing has occurred in our history that has made such a deep and solemn appeal to the patriotic spirit of our people. Nothing has so revived, at a time when such a revival is most needed, the faith, the confidence in, and the love of, the people for their country."

"I believe that this celebration has done more to aid in maintaining national unity during these distressful times than anything else could possibly have done. I believe that this celebration was an inspiration in its origin and has been a revelation in its progress. Instead of questioning the wisdom of devoting a few months to fundamental Americanism, I believe that the United States of America should continue on forever with some such great educational and patriotic service to the people. They deserve it and most emphatically our country needs it—needs it now as never before—and the people demand it. To continue the celebration until Thanksgiving Day was no mistake. I am not sure that the big mistake will be in stopping it, even then."

Brown has been classed as among those Cabinet members who want other than a strictly dry plank.

He did not elaborate his view today on the exact nature of the plank expected to be had, but again reported progress being made on the platform as a whole and indicated an expectation that both those who favor national prohibition as it stands and those who lean toward a change would be satisfied.

Only yesterday, another highly placed Republican, Representative Snell—the party leader in the House—said the plank would be "liberal."

Bond servants were the people who came into this country in colonial times and were sold into servitude upon reaching this country if they were not already bound to a definite master. They were free at the close of their term of service.

With wings measuring 12 inches across, the Atlas silk moth is the giant of its kind.

Glancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob.

Sarah would help her. If she entered the living room at the usual time no one would suspect she had been out of the house.

Oh, of course it would be all right! These last minutes with Dan were too precious to waste on foolish presentiments.

"You don't understand about everything now, do you?" she whispered. "That it wasn't my fault I didn't answer your phone call?"

"I don't understand anything when you look up at me that way."

"But, Dan—"

"Darling, I'll admit I was an idiot to doubt you even for a minute. I'll never do it again. Do you really have to go back to that stone castle of yours right away? Isn't there any way in the world you could escape and have dinner with me? Why not telephone?"

"Oh, I couldn't! Don't you see, no one knows I'm away. I don't want them to find out."

"But, Cherry, we'll have to find some way out of all this. How're we ever going to see each other if you have to run away like Cinderella at the stroke of midnight? Something's got to be done. Maybe if I had a talk with your father—"

"Don't do any good. We'll manage some way, though. I'm so happy about finding you and knowing you care. I'm just certain everything's going to be all right!"

"Just the same, Cherry—"

"Please! I tell you everything's going to be all right!"

The cab stopped a block from the Dixon home. It was time to say goodby. Cherry's lips formed the words but they were crushed against Dan's. His arm tightened about the girl. Realization that they were leaving one another suddenly became a cruelty not to be endured.

"I must go now, Dan. I must!"

She spoke the words but still she hesitated. Shyly the girl took Phillips' face between her two hands, lightly and swiftly placed a kiss on his forehead, then drew away.

She was outside the cab now, smiling back at him.

"Tomorrow—remember I'll call." Dan Phillips, alone in the gloom of the taxicab, told the driver to turn around and head for town. He leaned back against the seat. Suddenly his eye lighted on the cab meter.

Phillips whistled softly, made a quick search of his pockets.

"Hey, buddy," he said to the driver. "Let me out at the next corner, will you?"

There was 25 cents in Dan Phillips' pocket after he had paid the fare. He walked four blocks, boarded a street car and rode to the News building.

CHERRY slipped through the hedge, crossed the garden and reached the side door of the house. Glancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob and entered.

There was no one in sight. Noiselessly Cherry mounted the rear stairway. She had almost reached her room when she heard a door open. Panic-stricken, the girl turned.

It was only Sarah! The woman came bustling forward. "Wherever have you been?" she demanded in a smothered voice. "Do you know what time it is?"

Cherry turned a dazzling smile upon her. "Come and help me. Sarah, I'll tell you all about it!" What she had to tell, however, waited until later. Dinner in the Dixon household was served punctually at 6:15. It was five minutes after six by the gold clock on Cherry's dressing table. As the girl flung off her coat and street dress Sarah extracted a fragile crepe gown from its hanger. Frantically Cherry pulled the gown over her head, stepped into black pumps and ran a comb through her rumpled hair.

"It'll have to do," she murmured as she made for the door. There were bright spots in each of Cherry's cheeks as she hurried down the stairs.

Her father stood with his back toward her, looking through a window. Her mother was busy over a square of needlepoint. Thank fortune, she was in time!

Cherry said, "Good evening, Mother," as she came forward. At the sound Walter Dixon turned. "Well," he said to the girl, "you're feeling better this evening."

She was surprised, off her guard. "Why—yes, I do feel better."

DIXON moved nearer. He eyed the girl critically. "Still I'm not satisfied," he said. "Not at all satisfied with your health. I've a little surprise for you, Cherry. You and your mother are leaving for California tomorrow. Two or three months on the coast will be good for you. Exactly what you need."

"But, Father—"

"Not a word. It's settled. I've ordered the tickets."

"But, Father, I don't want to go to California!"

"Just the same you're going. I tell you I've arranged—"

The girl's face had whitened. Appealingly she turned to her mother. "Please, Mother," she begged. "I don't want to go away now. Why, I don't need a trip anywhere. I'm perfectly well!"

Dixon's voice cut in. "You will do as I say," he told the girl warningly. "Suppose I tell you that I saw you this afternoon in a taxicab on Sixth street. Suppose I tell you I saw the young good-for-nothing you were with! You had my instructions that you were not to see that scoundrel again, yet you deliberately disobeyed! Deliberately broke your word! Well, I'll see you don't have a second chance to break it. You're going to California!"

"I didn't break my word!" the girl denied angrily. "And Dan isn't a scoundrel!"

Suddenly the girl threw her head back. "I won't be silent!" she cried. "You've bullied everyone in this house as long as I can remember but now I'm going to talk. You're not going to send me to California because I won't go! Do you hear that—I won't go! And there's no use telling me I can't see Dan Phillips because I'm going to see him. Just as often and whenever I want to—"

"Cherry, you don't know what you're saying!" Mrs. Dixon's voice was horrid-strident.

"Oh, yes, I do!" the girl insisted. She turned blazing eyes on both parents. "I know how you and father told the servants to lie and tried to keep Dan away from me. Well, I love Dan Phillips. Yes, and I'm going to marry him!"

"Cherry!"

The mother's protest was drowned by Walter Dixon's roar: "You'll apologize for what you've said, young woman, or you'll leave this house!"

For an instant father and daughter eyed each other. Then with a little cry Cherry turned. "I'll never apologize!" she flung over her shoulder. "I'm going away!"

Aurora Flier Big Star Of Air Races

Omaha, Neb., May 31—(AP)—Johnny Livingston, more familiarly known as "King Riscatti", who took back home to Aurora, Ill., most of the 1931 Omaha air race cash awards, duplicated his feat in the 1932 air races which ended here yesterday.

Livingston won four first this year and added several second and third awards to his list. Art Davis of Lansing, Mich., was the second big money winner with three firsts and several lesser awards.

The Charles "Speed" Holman trophy, put into competition in honor of the famous St. Paul, Minn., flyer of that name, was won by Russell Boardman of Springfield, Mass., who was judged a winner over Roy Wilson and Frank Clark movie stunt pilots, after a thrilling series of acrobatics.

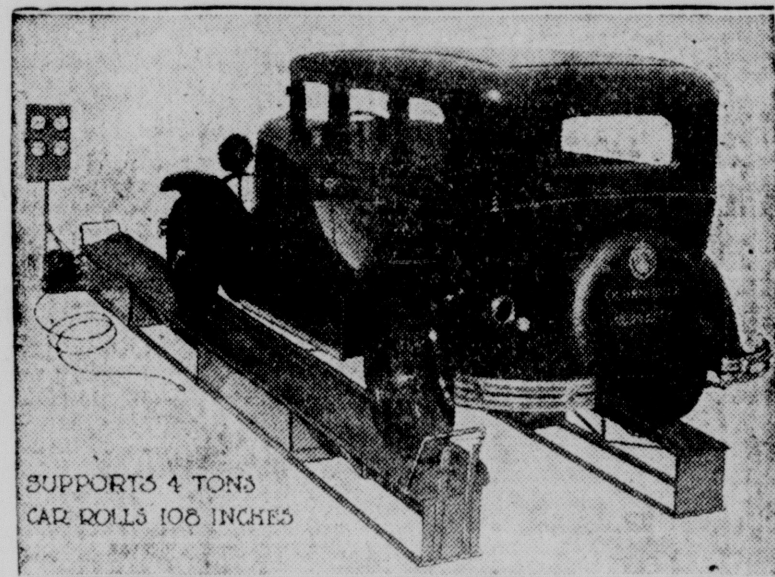

Holman was killed here last year when he attempted to end his acrobatic exhibition by flying upside down past the grandstand when only 20 feet in the air.

TANDEM PROPPELLER

Rushville, Mo.—Charles L. Brown has obtained a patent on an airplane which features a tandem propeller. Advantages of this type of propeller are said to be elimination of vibration and torque, and production of slower and more efficient propeller speed in ratio to engine speed. The propellers revolve in opposite directions.

"CROSS-BLENDING" means much more than just mixing tobaccos together.

It "welds" together different kinds of the several varieties of tobacco... many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco.

THIS "WELDING" TOGETHER—or Cross-Blending—permits every kind of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. Each tobacco is thus made to yield its finest flavors.

CROSS-BLENDING takes all these pleasing flavors and aromas and combines them into one—the Chesterfield taste. And we think you will agree that it is a far better taste... worth all the extra care that Chesterfield takes to get it.

EVERYTHING that money can buy and that science knows about is done to make CHESTERFIELD milder and taste better.
